DON'T LEAVE NORWAY

No Need to Seek Afar. The Evidence Is At Your Door

No need to leave Norway to hunt up proof, because you have it here at home. The straightforward statement of a Norway resident like that given below, bears an interest for every man, woman or child here in Norway.

Albert F. Prescott, shoemaker, Crockett's Bridge, Norway, says: "My kidneys gave out a year ago and I had back-ache so badly it put me past going for several days. I couldn't bend, I was so stiff and lame. I was working in the ship yards at the time and I blame so much heavy lifting for my trouble. I had to get up several times during the night to pass the kidney secretions and I felt drowsy all the time. Finally I went to Stone's Drug Store and got three boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills and began using them. Doan's reached my case at once and after using three boxes, the trouble left me entirely. I have felt fine since."

Price 60c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mr. Prescott had. Foster-Milburn Co., Mfrs., Buffalo, N. Y.

THE ETERNAL ARTIST

He who has never loved a range of great hills, blue, Or loved a clover field, kissed by silver dew, Or loved an autumn night with scarlet leaves and brown, Singing all about upon the moon-beamed ground, Or loved great, whispering woods of dusky, blue-black fir, Or sweetly-scented pines, with branches all a-sift, Or loved a fire of glowing sunset, With afterthought of rose and violet, And just a sigh of amethyst, Drip in a veil of mist Of molten gold, and rainbow rays, Trail at last, the end of day— With violet-grey shades, In twilight walls of shadowed woods, Amid the forests shadow-hushed, Or loved a silver, rose-streaked Dawn, That opens wide the world of morn, And kisses each sweet, golden note That pours from out the skylark's throat, Or loved the scent of pinny sod, He never loved the artist, God.

PORTER

Auto Turned Turtle

While Oliver S. Chapman was driving his auto through Ossipee, N. H. on his return from Lynn, Mass., Wednesday afternoon, October 4th, part of the steering gear near the right wheel broke, causing the wheel to turn to the outside of the road, turning the car upside-down over a six foot bank on to a pile of rocks. Mr. Chapman was accompanied by his sister, Mrs. P. B. Warren, his sister-in-law Mrs. John A. Chapman and Mrs. Ashley Weeks all of Kezar Falls. The entire party got pinned under the car, but after a few minutes struggle Mrs. Weeks succeeded in getting out. She helped Mr. Chapman out and then started for help. Mr. Chapman helped his sister out and then they together tried to get Mrs. Chapman out, who was unconscious, but all their efforts failed. With the help that Mrs. Weeks brought they finally got Mrs. Chapman out of the wreck after she had been pinned there at least half an hour.

The party was then taken to Ossipee where a doctor was called. Mrs. Chapman regained consciousness but she suffered such terrible pain that the doctor gave her ether. In the meantime telephone calls were sent to Kezar Falls and soon John A. Chapman, Isaac Stanley, H. D. Chapman and Mrs. John Bidlon were on their way to Ossipee to carry the wrecked ones to their homes. Mrs. Ashley Weeks received a slight cut and a few bruises, Mrs. Warren and Mr. Chapman were also bruised some too, but recovered from the accident in a few days. Although Mrs. John Chapman is still confined to her bed she is gaining every day and it is hoped she will soon be as well as usual. They had just hit a bad strip of road and were driving very slowly, otherwise the accident no doubt would have been more serious. Ralph Tucker and Curtis Chapman went up to Ossipee after the baggage and repaired the car so they could drive it home. The windshield and top were a total wreck, but otherwise there was little damage done.

Mr. and Mrs. Frankie Weeks and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Cardland an auto trip through the White Mountains recently, which they enjoyed very much. They also climbed to the top of Mount Washington, where they had an unusual experience for them of being on top of the clouds.

Sadie Chapman spent the week end with her cousin Gladys.

An auction will be held Saturday, October 21st, at the Esbo Heino place at the foot of Summit Hill, Harrison. Cows, horse, hens and hay will be sold. D. M. Stuart auctioneer. See ad.

The new improved Super-Six motor, introduced a few months ago, makes it the smoothest—most delightful of all the Hudsons to drive. It has charms in performance that owners of earlier models never knew.

Everyone has conceded Hudson top place in reliability. For seven years it has led in fine car sales. More than 120,000 Super-Sixes are in service. The new prices and the Hudson of today with refinements in chassis and body give it a value attraction careful buyers of fine cars cannot ignore.

Of special interest to those who desire a closed car at little more than open car cost—is the Coach. No car of its utility and price advantage is to be found within $500 of its cost.

(Communication) TAXATION AND HIGH COST OF LIVING

The bankers in session in New York recently declared in favor of scaling down the debt foreign nations owe the U. S. for money lent them during the World War and against allowing them to pay in manufactured goods and productions of their countries when brought here at reasonable tariff rates. They do not feel any burden of taxation, such as the poorer classes are experiencing, and no matter whether the country is prosperous or otherwise, their harvest is always bountiful and satisfactory. Indeed in hard times some seem to prosper more than in good times. The advocates of putting additional burdens upon the people only create distrust and resentment. It is safe to conclude that no such scheme will ever be carried into effect. The masses will not stand for it and no political party dares champion it. The purpose of the moneyed interests is too apparent. With the debts due the U. S. out of the way, they could lend all the money they could scrape up, at big rates of interest and at a figure for securities below par value, thus getting a rake off at both ends. They also oppose a low and reasonable tariff to benefit the profiteer. It's such schemes as this which foster class hatred. We do not forget that blocs and classes appear to influence legislation and get measures enacted into law for their benefit. A class got the surtaxes repealed. If they were so anxious to help the foreigner, why did they kick at the surtaxes? And, if they really desire to help him, nothing would assist him to get onto his feet again as a market to sell his goods and productions. Bah! Don't these gentry know that the people can see that there is a good sized colored coon in the woodpile?—Comment.

They have a highway law up in Vermont which benefits the small towns and poor at the expense of the big and rich ones. Brattleboro pays into the state treasury a tax under this law of $4,500 and gets back $900, while Halifax pays $138 and receives $760.—News Item.

We stated long ago that there are some state commissions which need shaking up. There is the fish and game commission. A few years ago the Supreme Court of Maine decided after ex-chief Justice Lucius A. Emery for the Public Utilities Commission had stated that the law was that an owner of land through which a brook ran had a right to fish in it, yet, the fish and game commission undertakes to control the fishing in such streams. Is it any wonder that some people are in favor of wiping the whole fish and game laws off the statute books and the commission with them?—Comment.

SOUTH ALBANY

Mrs. W. I. Beckler of Albany called at Merritt Sawin's, Thursday. Mrs. Beckler had been to carry Mr. Beckler's aunt, Mrs. Sylvia Dresser of Berlin, N. H., to visit relatives at North Waterford. They had a very pleasant day last Tuesday when Mr. Cross took them in his car through Grafton Notch on to Berlin Mills and around home. He has returned to his home after a short vacation from his work. He has been conductor on the electric cars for 21 years, the three are all that are left of a family of thirteen children. They also visited several other places of interest while he was here.

Arthur Millett has sold two cows to Ernest Brown and Mr. Brown has sold them to Harold Millett of Waterford.

SUNDAY SCHOOL CONVENTION

There will be a demonstration of the use of the rates in the services of religion at the State Sunday School Convention in Augusta, October 17, 18, 19.

The Convention singing will be of a high order with many special numbers. A children's "Rainbow Chorus" has been organized and will sing one evening of the Convention. In spite of their extreme youthfulness, they will sing some of the standard hymns of the church and it is expected their performance will display a finished technique. This will be done to encourage Sunday schools to drill their pupils in the technicalities of music and also to encourage Sunday schools to make use of the best religious music.

Pictures will also be made use of to deepen impressions and to visualize great religious truths. The singing for one evening will be entirely from the screen, when pictures of the life of Christ will be displayed accompanied by appropriate hymns. The work of Sunday schools they could lend all the money they could scrape up, at big rates of interest and at a figure for securities below par value, thus getting a rake off at both ends. They also oppose a low and reasonable tariff to benefit the profiteer. It's such schemes as this which foster class hatred. We do not forget that blocs and classes appear to influence legislation and get measures enacted into law for their benefit. A class got the surtaxes repealed. If they were so anxious to help the foreigner, why did they kick at the surtaxes? And, if they really desire to help him, nothing would assist him to get onto his feet again as a market to sell his goods and productions. Bah! Don't these gentry know that the people can see that there is a good sized colored coon in the woodpile?—Comment.

The closing session will be devoted to pageantry, when a famous production will be shown, viz: "The Light of the World." The purpose of the pageant is to make clear the essential place of Christianity in the life of the world. Upwards of a hundred people from Augusta will participate in this. Some of the best local musical talent will also take part. Scenes from the prophets, the Nativity, will be dramatized, the pageant culminating with a great portrayal of modern missionary and educational endeavor. This production made a profound impression upon Japan where it was first given at the world's Sunday School Convention.

It is expected to be a leading feature of the State Sunday School gathering in Augusta. The director of music visualization and pageantry will be Prof. Herman U. Leedy of Boston University. He will be assisted by Ralph Brown of Augusta.

WELCHVILLE FAIR

Unfavorable weather for large crowds greeted the Oxford Grange Saturday morning. The annual fair, however, was not deterred and preparations went forward with a rush under the oversight of live committees.

Fakirs pitched their tents along the highway near the Grange Hall. Crowds gathered and before noon nearly a thousand people swarmed around this social center where the Mechanic Falls band was stationed.

Exhibits in the hall were unusually good and offered a wide variety. The display was evenly divided between natural products of the forest and the handicrafts from the home. Roscoe Staples, J. V. Hunting, Mr. and Mrs. C. K. Denning and Mrs. H. R. Farris were the prominent exhibitors in farm produce and canning activities.

The Oxford Club of girls comprising the Faithful Workers and the Jolly Sevens made a fine showing on the stage with a display of needlework. Their leader, Mrs. A. A. Bumpus, was in charge. Dampness drove the Mechanic Falls band under cover late in the afternoon and playing continued in the dining hall.

Pulling by horses in pairs caused some excitement on the cross street while several foot races were run along the main road. A ball game in the forenoon was exciting. About 200 tickets were sold for a regular grange dinner served in the dining hall, in charge of a committee comprising Mrs. J. W. Hunting, chairman, Mrs. A. L. Chaplin and Mrs. Thor. Teague. A small army of assistants were on hand and nothing lagged.

The general committee for the affair was A. L. Chaplin, E. F. Staples, Win Gammon, Thomas Tague, Peter Barrett, C. H. Brett, George Tyner, Mrs. J. W. Hunting, Mrs. George Tyner, Mildred Chaplin.

Other committees were: Hall, J. V. Hunting, George Tyner, Mrs. P. G. Barrett, Mrs. F. W. Wilson; cattle, H. O. Coy, C. K. Denning, C. H. Brett; poultry, Archie Edwards, Richard Tyner, Mrs. Blanche Coy; horses, Win Gammon, Thomas Tague, Gertrude Edwards, Eunice Gammon; Alice Tyner; grounds, P. G. Barrett, Clem Poland, Sherman Grant, A. L. Chaplin; Printing, R. F. Staples; Tickets, J. V. Hunting, H. O. Coy, G. W. Tyner, A. L. Chaplin.

Hall Exhibits

In the vegetable department, J. V. Hunting occupied considerable space showing fine products grown at Riverside Farm. He displayed a sample of Soudan grass, apples, potatoes, beets, squashes and turnips. There were twelve varieties of beans and various canned goods. A giant sun flower on a heavy stalk attracted the curious. Mr. Hunting said sodium nitrate was partly responsible for this unusual growth.

C. K. Denning of Elmwood Farm had an attractive display of fruit, potatoes, fifteen varieties of apples and some thirty jars of preserves, shown by Mrs. Denning.

George Tyner had beans, celery, apples, eggs and a corn stalk hardly touched by frost. Two monster pumpkins raised on Tyner farm and pumpkins, carrots and cranberries exhibited by Howard and Raymond Coy made a good showing.

Mrs. H. R. Farris won first premium with a large display of preserves. There were twenty-five jars nicely displayed.

Other prominent exhibitors were Ed. Churchill with a variety of corn, Ed. Holmes had two monster stalks nearly sixteen feet tall. One stalk had one large terminal head, the other displayed twenty-four small ones. Horace Holmes showed cabbages, carrots and beets. Roscoe Staples' products included celery, carrots, beets and cabbages.

The dairy work was an attractive feature and occupied considerable space on one side of the hall.

Mrs. A. A. Bumpus, leader of the Oxford Girls' Club, and Mrs. William Caldwell had a fine display on the stage. Delicate needlework executed by members of the "Faithful Workers" and "Jolly Sevens" was a credit to the girls and their leader. Articles winning prizes were sent to the Oxford County Contest held at South Paris, Monday.

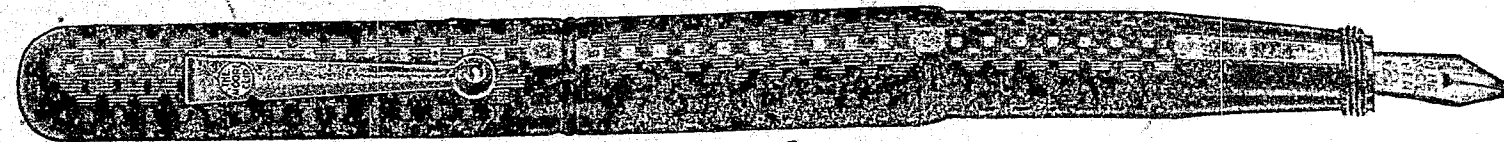

Mrs. George Wood had a fine display of lunch cloth, pillow cases, solid embroidery and an embroidered kimono. Many beautiful pieces were shown by Mrs. Florence H. Brett, Hazel Marshall, Mrs. G. Edwards, Mrs. George Tyner, Mrs. Bertha Foster and Mrs. Fannie Denning March.

Margaret Denning, aged 5, showed a fine sample of needle craft. Dollies were exhibited by Cora Warren, aged 7, and Mrs. Cora Warren had similar work on display. Crocheted work was shown by Mrs. Bertha Foster, Mrs. Adan Herrick, Mrs. Harry Noyes and Mrs. G. E. Martin. Mrs. S. F. Gant displayed a night robe made 75 years ago by Mrs. Imogene Hackett Bickford. She also had two shawls that came from India and a silk quilt. Mrs. P. G. Barrett displayed several pretty white pieces of exquisite workmanship. Quilts made from felt tobacco flags were shown by Mrs. Laura Martin. Mrs. J. V. Hunting had on exhibition part of a hunting coat believed to be over 200 years old. This unique curiosity was once the property of her grandfather's grandmother. She also displayed a hand-woven quilt at least a century old.

A show case of antiques in charge of Mrs. Frank Wilson, was a rare collection from a past age. There were old fashioned head bags, jewelry and solid silver spoons. Paper money issued by the Confederacy, old time school books, and a large collection of coins loaned by P. G. Barrett made an attractive and instructive object lesson. Old deeds from Plymouth, Mass., attracted considerable attention. These were loaned by Mrs. J. V. Hunting who formerly resided there and were presented Mr. Hunting when the old court house burned and the records scattered about. A full rigged ship in a bottle was a puzzle and an interesting curiosity. Mrs. Sadie Grant offered to this generation of dappers, an ancient flask (empty, of course), a pewter water pitcher, antique shawls and fans.

The apron table carried for sale a variety of useful articles made for service and not show. Mrs. George Waite and Mrs. W. A. Yeaton carried on the trade. A large spread was sold in a contest during the day and won by Mrs. Mabel Tyner. Mrs. Dallas L. Benson, formerly Agnes Fuller, had a fine display of ribbons and silver cups won at the various poultry shows where her ducks, geese and other fowls have been exhibited. Blue was the conspicuous color of the ribbons with a slight sprinkling of red. The slug-like combed Mottled Minorca said to be the Maine champion the past year in egg production, was in the center of the exhibit with a collection of clean cut eggs. These

The NO. 38 WOOD FURNACE which was set in our church at South Franklin, Vt., in 1886 is in good condition at the present time and is giving perfect satisfaction every season; likewise the WOOD FURNACE of same size set in my house in 1885.

Thirty-five and thirty-six years of performance and still going strong.

This is Why

Fire box all cast iron, very heavy, body corrugated and in one piece, with no joints to open—practically indestructible.

Radiator made of heavy plate steel with heavy cast iron heads. Radiating surface very large by reason of its six-five inch hot air flues. Joint between radiator and body is a deep cup—perfectly smoke tight. Radiation direct and enormous from even a light fire. The cold air enters at bottom from cellar or outdoors, rises on all sides and through the hot air flues, becoming intensely hot before passing into the hot air pipes.

NOTICE!

From the above cut that the fire box is low—to save lifting the wood. It is long enough to take four foot cord wood sawed once for economy. The door is large enough to take wholeunks which saves splitting.

There is no wood grate, the wood burns on the ashes same as in a cook stove, with draft on the fire line—the most practical, economical way. The fire box is large enough to keep a fire all night without attention.

An appeal to common sense

If you plan to burn wood for economy and comfort's sake, use a furnace that is made and proven to be the right furnace for burning wood. The Wood & Bishop Furnaces are furnaces of great power, and simple, durable construction at moderate cost.

HUNTING BAN LIFTED

Gov. Baxter by proclamation, Monday, officially lifted the ban on hunting, the heavy rains having extinguished the forest fires.

The proclamation follows: "Heavy rains having extinguished most of the forest fires, that have been raging for several weeks throughout the State, it is now considered safe to allow hunting and to permit the carrying of firearms in the woods of Maine.

"The proclamation issued on Oct. 4 is hereby rescinded.

"In order that there may be no recurrence of forest fires I call upon all persons who go into the Maine woods to exercise every precaution in building and extinguishing fires and in the use of smoking materials. Forest fires, almost without exception are the result of carelessness. Those who have the great privilege of enjoying the hunting in the woods of Maine must be made to realize their responsibilities. If forest fires again become dangerous the open season on hunting will be suspended a second time.

"I call upon the citizens of Maine as well as upon the citizens of other states who come to Maine to hunt to keep in mind the fact that the timberlands of Maine are the State's greatest asset and that our laws allowing persons to go through the wild lands of the State are unusually liberal.

"I should regret the passage of any law restricting the use of the woods, but such laws may become necessary. If persons who now have access to our forest resources fail to exercise care and restraint, carelessness is inexcusable, and people must be made to realize that whenever a fire occurs there is great financial loss to timberland owners and cruel destruction of wild life."

INDIAN SUMMER

The idea of Indian summer originated in England. When specially mellow weather came along the first of November it was called St. Martin's summer because St. Martin day is Nov. 11. When it came about the middle of October it was called St. Luke's summer because St. Luke's Day was Oct. 18. So pretty nearly two full months can lay claim to this indefinite weather phrase.

Probably because of their prejudice against the old church calendar in general and the Indians in particular, old New Englanders designated unseasonable warm fall weather Indian summer and were even more indefinite in setting the bounds than had been their English forefathers.

This explanation of Indian summer is far-fetched, and we believe, inaccurate. It may be true that our Indian summer coincides more or less closely with the English St. Martin's summer so far as the calendar is concerned, but the reasons for the names have nothing in common.

The most commonly accepted explanation or definition of Indian summer in North America is that it is a period of warm weather late in autumn, usually characterized by a clear sky and hazy or smoky appearance on the horizon. The name is probably derived from the custom of the Indians of using this time in preparing for winter by laying in stores of food.

And then after Indian summer comes Snow summer, when the women of the tribe completed the job that the males had begun. Indian summer is a movable event, but it cannot be recognized until we have had a few touches of wintry weather severe enough to make the change particularly noticeable.—Sentinel.

THE CALL OF THE MOUNTAINS

The first Sunday in October marked in all probability the height of the season for motor trips into the White Mountains, thousands of families from all over Western Maine taking the trail to either Pinkham, Franconia or Crawford Notch—a veritable pilgrimage to New England's shrine of autumnal beauty.

Follage turns earlier in the uplands than it does down in the southern valleys of Maine. So that, while Dame Nature has begun to deck the coastwise forests with flaming colors, the mountain slopes are glorious, reveling in every rainbow hue.

It is not so many years ago that Mount Washington stood afar, on the distant western horizon, as inaccessible in nearby parts of Maine as the North Pole or the Fiji Islands. Rarely some adventurer drove through on some pleasure trip with horse and buggy; annually a pitifully small excursion fared forth in October to gaze upon the snow-capped peaks for a few brief midday hours; still more rarely did Nature-lovers make cross-country hikes into the big hills in quest of sheer beauty.

Today the automobile has been the long distance telescope that has shortened the range to Washington, Clay, Jefferson, Adams and Madison, until the most of us flash there and back in a day or two, or a week end at most; and bring fresh inspiration for the cold winter of hard work and lasting dreams for remembrance at the evening fireside, when the winds shake the trees like dry bones and the snow drifts high against the windows and it is good to sit and think of what our New England Presidential peaks—only 80 miles away—mean to Maine people.

ROAD MOPE

We should like to call particular attention of some of the brethren to "road mope," the latest coined automobile phrase. It designates a type of the flivverboob and is a driver who insists on going so slowly he exasperates others and thereby induces them to take chances in picking him off and getting out of his way. In addition to being a general nuisance, he is considered a real menace to safe driving and officials are trying to inject some pep into him that will take him out of the "mope" class.—Waterville Sentinel.

It is right and proper to limit the speed of automobiles on the public highways, but things have come to a pretty pass when a motorist may not drive as slow as he pleases. Of course, the slow driver must not "hog the road"; that is, he must at all times be prepared to give those who want to go fast an opportunity to pass him. The officials will do well if they enforce existing regulations, but they will not be doing well if they try to compel faster driving on the part of the comparatively few who have not been bitten by the speed bug!—Biddeford Journal.

South Franklin, Vt.

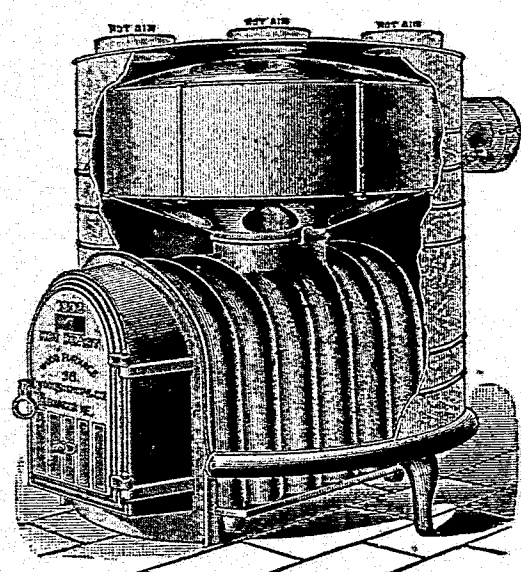

The NO. 38 WOOD FURNACE which was set in our church at South Franklin, Vt., in 1886 is in good condition at the present time and is giving perfect satisfaction every season; likewise the WOOD FURNACE of same size set in my house in 1885.

Thirty-five and thirty-six years of performance and still going strong.

This is Why

Fire box all cast iron, very heavy, body corrugated and in one piece, with no joints to open—practically indestructible.

Radiator made of heavy plate steel with heavy cast iron heads. Radiating surface very large by reason of its six-five inch hot air flues. Joint between radiator and body is a deep cup—perfectly smoke tight. Radiation direct and enormous from even a light fire. The cold air enters at bottom from cellar or outdoors, rises on all sides and through the hot air flues, becoming intensely hot before passing into the hot air pipes.

NOTICE!

From the above cut that the fire box is low—to save lifting the wood. It is long enough to take four foot cord wood sawed once for economy. The door is large enough to take wholeunks which saves splitting.

There is no wood grate, the wood burns on the ashes same as in a cook stove, with draft on the fire line—the most practical, economical way. The fire box is large enough to keep a fire all night without attention.

An appeal to common sense

If you plan to burn wood for economy and comfort's sake, use a furnace that is made and proven to be the right furnace for burning wood. The Wood & Bishop Furnaces are furnaces of great power, and simple, durable construction at moderate cost.

Yours for better furnaces

HUNTING BAN LIFTED

Gov. Baxter by proclamation, Monday, officially lifted the ban on hunting, the heavy rains having extinguished the forest fires.

The proclamation follows:

"Heavy rains having extinguished most of the forest fires, that have been raging for several weeks throughout the State, it is now considered safe to allow hunting and to permit the carrying of firearms in the woods of Maine."

"The proclamation issued on Oct. 4 is hereby rescinded."

"In order that there may be no recurrence of forest fires I call upon all persons who go into the Maine woods to exercise every precaution in building and extinguishing fires and in the use of smoking materials. Forest fires, almost without exception are the result of carelessness. Those who have the great privilege of enjoying the hunting in the woods of Maine must be made to realize their responsibilities. If forest fires again become dangerous the open season on hunting will be suspended a second time."

"I call upon the citizens of Maine as well as upon the citizens of other states who come to Maine to hunt to keep in mind the fact that the timberlands of Maine are the State's greatest asset and that our laws allowing persons to go through the wild lands of the State are unusually liberal."

"I should regret the passage of any law restricting the use of our woods, but such laws may become necessary. If persons who now have access to our forest resources fail to exercise care and restraint, carelessness is inexcusable, and people must be made to realize that whenever a fire occurs there is great financial loss to timberland owners and cruel destruction of wild life."

INDIAN SUMMER

The idea of Indian summer originated in England. When specially mellow weather came along the first of November it was called St. Martin's summer because St. Martin day is Nov. 11. When it came about the middle of October it was called St. Luke's summer because St. Luke's Day was Oct. 18. So pretty nearly two fall months can lay claim to this indefinite weather phrase.

Probably because of their prejudice against the old church calendar in general and the Indians in particular, old New Englanders designated unseasonable warm fall weather Indian summer and were even more indefinite in setting the bounds than had been their English forefathers.

This explanation of Indian summer is far-fetched, and we believe, inaccurate. It may be true that our Indian summer coincides more or less closely with the English St. Martin's summer so far as the calendar is concerned, but the reasons for the names have nothing in common. The most commonly accepted explanation or definition of Indian summer in North America is that it is a period of warm weather late in autumn, usually characterized by a clear sky and hazy or smoky appearance on the horizon. The name is probably derived from the custom of the Indians of using this time in preparing for winter by laying in stores of food.

And then after Indian summer comes Snow summer, when the women of the tribe completed the job that the males had begun. Indian summer is a movable event, but it cannot be recognized until we have had a few touches of wintry weather severe enough to make the change particularly noticeable.—Sentinel.

THE CALL OF THE MOUNTAINS

The first Sunday in October marked in all probability the height of the season for motor trips into the White Mountains, thousands of families from all over Western Maine taking the trail to either Pinkham, Franconia or Crawford Notch—a veritable pilgrimage to New England's shrine of autumnal beauty.

Foliage turns earlier in the uplands than it does down in the southern valleys of Maine. So that, while Dame Nature has begun to deck the coastwise forests with flaming colors, the mountain slopes are glorious, reveling in every rainbow hue.

It is not so many years ago that Mount Washington stood afar, on the distant western horizon, as inaccessible in nearby parts of Maine as the North Pole or the Fiji Islands. Rarely some adventurer drove through on some pleasure trip with horse and buggy; annually a pitifully small excursion fared forth in October to gaze upon the snow-capped peaks for a few brief midday hours; still more rarely did Nature-lovers make cross-country hikes into the big hills in quest of sheer beauty.

Today the automobile has been the long distance telescope that has shortened the range to Washington, Clay, Jefferson, Adams and Madison, until the most of us dash up there and back in a day or two, or a week, and bring fresh inspiration for the cold winter of hard work and lasting dreams for remembrance at the evening fireside, when the winds shake the trees like dry bones and the snow drifts high against the windows and it is good to sit and think of what our New England Presidential peaks—only 80 miles away—mean to Maine people.

ROAD MOPE

We should like to call particular attention of some of the brethren to "road mope," the latest coined automobile phrase. It designates a type of the flivverboob and is a driver who insists on going so slowly he exasperates others and thereby induces them to take chances in picking him off and getting out of his way. In addition to being a general nuisance, he's considered a real menace to the "hog the road"; that is, he must at all times be prepared to give those who want to go fast an opportunity to pass him. The officials will do well if they enforce existing regulations, but they will not be doing well if they try to compel faster driving on the part of the comparatively few who have not been bitten by the speed bug!—Biddesford Journal.

HOLDING THE TOURISTS

In these times automobile tourists are running around the country in great numbers. It is a rather easy thing to get them, but it is not so easy to hold them and induce them to keep coming. If nothing is done to make a locality pleasant for such visitors, they are apt not to come again. They say they have seen that section once, and that is all they want of it.

California and Florida are two states that have done much to attract and hold motor tourists and Wisconsin is another that has made a study of it. Also it has done a great deal to attract motorists by motor camps and parking places.

One feature of these accomplishments is that public golf links are frequently attached to them. In Milwaukee county alone 50,000 tourists used the motor camps and golf links this year. Golf has become a tremendously popular game, and it can be made a big influence in attracting and holding the tourist crowd.

In some places such camps are supported by the merchants who realize that they are well repaid from the business that comes. In others a stock company will be formed to rent tents and cabins for a small sum. Or the municipality may do it.

Automobile touring is greatly increased when a party can go from one camp to another and put up at small expense. If in addition the tourists can take along their golf clubs and try out the links in various places, a new pleasure is added to the trip stimulating a desire to come again. As the number of automobiles increases, the number of people who desire to take interesting trips of this kind becomes very large. The place that provides comfortable arrangements for them at small expense is going to become a tourist center.

HURRY BUG DOES IT

It's the hurry bug that causes most automobile traffic accidents. It gets into the brains of the drivers, particularly our young drivers, and its mischief is told in the death columns of the morning. Just as the bookworm deprives men and women of ambition, the hurry bug deprives them temporarily of reason. Cars skid to wheel because the person at the wheel is in a hurry. Cars collide at corners, get run down at railroad crossings, go over embankments, telescope themselves against stone walls or try to jump over telephone poles because somebody wants to get somewhere before somebody else. If people would drive cars with the same calmness and absence of hurry that used to mark the handling of horse-drawn carriages of slower days the Monday morning news pages would look quite different than now. There is room here for a biology. What scientist will be first to identify the hurry bug and offer an antidote? The police judges are doing their best, but the bug continues to flourish.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

REUNITED AFTER FIFTY YEARS

James S. Noble who was a visitor of friends and relatives in town in the summer of 1921 sends us the following account of his recent marriage. Mr. Noble's mother was Hannah Crockett, daughter of James Crockett and he used to spend his summers here when a boy and is a constant reader of the Norway Advertiser.

"True love never dies," so said the aged couple reunited after a separation of over half a century.

Fifty-two years ago among the picturesque hills of Wisconsin began a romance which culminated last week at St. Paul Park in the marriage of two former sweethearts.

Away back in 1870 in the little town of Monticello, Wisconsin, James S. Noble a youth of 18 years met and loved "sweet sixteen" Alice E. Barlow, but their love affair was of short duration, for fate stepped in and Mr. Noble's parents moved to another town and the young lovers were separated. As time wore on, hearing nothing from each other both married and settled down to wedded bliss. Miss Barlow then Mrs. Mosher coming to St. Paul to live. While Mr. Noble has been a resident of Minneapolis for over 30 years, neither leaving the whereabouts of the other. Both in time buried their life companions. Mrs. Mosher was the mother of three daughters, Mrs. Nellie Wallace, Sioux City, Iowa; Mrs. Ashley E. Hull and Mrs. Ella Tussler, St. Paul Park. Eight grandchildren and three great grandchildren. Mr. Noble has no children. One year ago Mr. Noble made a trip east to visit Boston, his birthplace, stopping at his old home town Monticello, he learned for the first time that his "sweet heart of long ago," had been living for years within ten miles of him. His return west he sought out his former friend who was then living with his daughter at St. Paul Park. Old friendships were renewed and it was soon discovered that the flame of true love still burned in their hearts as ardently as it had in their younger days and just one year from the day they met last time the happy romance ended in a pretty wedding Thursday afternoon, 4:30, Sept. 28, 1922, at the home of the bride's son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Ashley E. Hull, Pleasant Ave., St. Paul Park. Rev. John S. Root, pastor of the Community church officiated in the presence of the immediate family of the bride. Little Alice Evelyn Hull, a granddaughter was flower girl and the only attendant.

The bride looked radiantly happy in a beaming gown of brown crepe and wore a corsage bouquet of white roses and banyan. The white-haired bridegroom, notwithstanding his seventy years, led his blushing bride to the altar with as youthful a heart as he would have done half a century ago, if fate had not intervened. The rooms were beautifully decorated in autumn leaves and garden flowers.

A bountiful wedding dinner was served, after which the happy couple left on a honeymoon trip and on their return will take up a residence in St. Paul.

Methodist Church Notes

Next Sunday, according to announcements already made, there will be a special offering for the benevolence. The financial year for the benevolent boards closes on Oct. 31st, and it is important that as large sums as possible should be sent into the treasuries before that date.

Bishops Hughes and Fisher are meeting with notable success in their effort to raise $2,000,000 which is lacking on the Centenary program thus far. Many individuals and churches are taking "units" of $100.00 each as their part of the deficiency. This church should raise about $750.00 in addition to amounts already pledged.

The sermon topics for Sunday will be "The Heart of Our Job" at the hour of Morning Worship; and "The Laws of the Harvest" at the evening service.

Sunday School at noon. Two classes with new teachers are now at work, an effort will be made to form at least one more new class. The dream of an active and growing organized Men's Class is also likely soon to come true. Epworth League devotional service at 6 p. m. Topic, "The Abundant Life," John 10, 10.

There will be an evening meeting of the W. H. M. S. on Tuesday evening, Oct. 17th, with special speakers. Miss Wallace, Conference Deaconess, will have part and a worker from outside the conference. The local auxiliary and the Queen Esther are interested in making the attendance as large as possible.

Joseph Andrews

After several years of failing health, Joseph Andrews, a native of Maine, died suddenly on Sept. 26 at the home of his niece, Mrs. Annie Woodworth at Hurley, South Dakota. His age was 78 years.

Mr. Andrews was born at Chatham, N. H., January 11, 1844. While in infancy he was taken to the home of his parents, where he grew to manhood. At the age of twenty-three he migrated to Iowa. Four years later he journeyed in a wagon on train to Dakota and selected a home in Spring Valley township, Turner County. Here he remained through the remainder of his life with the exception of visits to Maine and other localities.

In 1874 he married Gorgiana Means, who passed away four years later, leaving one daughter, who is Mrs. Mary Williams of Pittsburg, Pa.

There have probably been few citizens of Turner County better known or better loved than was "Uncle Joe" Andrews as he was affectionately called by everyone. Of a modest and shy disposition, he never claimed credit for himself, but his hand was always out to the needy and no one asked sympathy from him in vain. His kind and generous nature was in his youth he sought late in life by study and effort to improve himself in speech and in writing. He was a vast storehouse of information concerning old neighbors and friends of years ago and he wrote a series of articles for the Norway Advertiser. He was a former resident of that place. Later he contributed to the Hurley Herald a series of Swan Lake sketches followed by a similar series on Spring Valley. He was the earliest living pioneer of these neighborhoods and his contributions were read with great interest.

Services were held at the Presbyterian Church, Rev. W. Lee Vincent officiating. The I. O. O. F. lodge attended in a body. Interment was in the Hurley Cemetery.

Circle Supper

The first circle supper given by the ladies of the Congregational church Wednesday evening was largely attended. The entertainment which followed the supper was by Miss Grace Sage.

Miss Sage read in an immensely pleasing manner Edward Sheldon's three-act play "Romance." The story is of a beautiful young Italian opera singer, who comes to New York for a season. Through Mr. Van Tile, with whom she has become very friendly abroad, she meets Thomas Armstrong, rector of St. Giles, a young man with fixed ideas on the propriety of bringing opera singers into one's home. He runs across this girl at a soiree at his friends house, when he calls on a matter of business. Finding her alone they became acquainted without the formality of an introduction, although she has already learned from Van Tile and her friends across the street that she is a singer.

When she goes to sing for the guests Van Tile appears and tells Tom who she is, to his great surprise. Three months pass, during which the two are together constantly. The day before she is to go back to Europe comes and she calls on Tom in his study. The aunt is also entertaining Van Tile and she has expressed her anxiety over the friendship between Rita and Tom. Rita's warmth of greeting is not met with the same warmth by the aunt, who leaves in a few minutes giving Van Tile a chance to ask Rita about Tom. While she has been told that she is a singer, she confesses her love for him and is told that for the sake of his happiness she must leave the house at once.

Tom arrives and prevents it. Van Tile is called out, and Tom tells her of his love and asks her to marry him. Though she thinks she cannot he insists that he is going to announce their engagement to Van Tile and his aunt. In a cry of fear she conveys to Tom that Van Tile has been her admirer and all has not been right between them.

Tom very stern and uncompromising, summons Van Tile, and in the good news, and challenges him to deny his statement regarding himself. Van Tile gives the impression that all is right and speaks in highest praise of the girl. With a cry of agony Rita calls out that he has lied. Tom is crushed. Van Tile saves Rita and the Rita. That evening Rita returns from a wonderful success in singing at the theater. Crowds follow her home and she speaks to them from her balcony. Then she goes in worn and weary to where Van Tile is waiting to say goodbye and to ask her if she will go with him. Rita tells him in the spring of old. She refuses to marry him, saying that Tom's love has taught her what a woman should be.

Toms card is sent up and Van Tile goes. Tom appears wet and cold from a long tramp in the snow. Seeing Van Tile the local auxiliary and the Queen Esther are interested in making the attendance as large as possible.

This is the story that is told by Bishop Armstrong to his grandson, Henry, who is eager to be married at once, against the old man's wishes. These two are introduced in the prologue. In the epilogue one finds the boy much improved by his grandfather's experience, but still determined on what he wants to do. After the grandfather gives his consent.

Harry wants to know what became of the singer and the bishop says he never saw her again. A few minutes later the report of her death is brought in and it was widely known for her charitable work. The bishop sighs and thinks sadly, "it seems but yesterday."

Rev. O. E. Barnard attended a meeting of Oxford Association of Congregational churches and ministers at Dixfield Tuesday, Oct. 10, Wednesday.

Pythian Sisters Sale

The annual sale at Pythian Hall Tuesday evening under the auspices of Lake Temple Pythian Sisters was a financial and social success.

Sale opened in the afternoon with the committees busily engaged. The fancy table with Mrs. Nettie Nevers, chairman, displayed a large variety of articles, which had a ready sale. Post cards were sold for a doll which was awarded to Mrs. Nellie Goodwin. Mrs. Eva Anderson carried away the crocheted yoke from this table.

Mrs. Sadie Lapham was chairman of the apron table that carried many dainty and serviceable articles. Homemade candy was served at a table with Mrs. Geneva Partridge in charge. Business was rushing at this location where fudge was the staple article.

Packages at the mystery table went like hot cakes. Toys, games and novelties were found by a large patronage. Mrs. Mary Kimball was chairman of this important committee.

Another lively place was the guessing table with Mrs. Edna Thompson in charge. Ferdinand Swan and Mrs. Eva Anderson were time in their guests on beans in a jar. Drawing lots awarded the velvet sofa pillow to Mrs. Anderson. A crib quilt became the property of Edward Anderson.

Supper was served at 6:45 o'clock with Mrs. Edith Edwards chairman of the committee. About 100 guests were present. The lucky one was held by Katherine Ramsdell who received a bed comforter. She also was awarded another comforter in the lucky post card contest.

Mrs. Harriet Brown, chairman of the entertainment committee, provided dancing for the remainder of the evening. Music by Roy White, violin, Harley True drums, Mr. Button, piano.

HOUSEWIFE AS A BEAUTY DOCTOR

Among your many services, Mrs. Housewife, none should be more appreciated than your careful planning of the family diet. The family probably realizes in a general way that this care of their food helps to keep every member well, but do they also realize that in so doing it also contributes directly to the good looks of each one?

The man of the house and big brother will probably sniff a little at the implication, but we women know that the dear creatures cherish a secret wish to look like their mothers. Not to be Greek gods, heaven forbid! But the fine, upstanding American men that nature intended them to be. And this is eminently proper.

As to big sister and little sister, well, no need to talk to them about beauty prescriptions!

There goes for all the family! Perhaps the most fundamental food rule for the home beauty doctor is to provide meals that will keep the intestinal tract in good order. Purgation here will rob the loveliest complexion of a good share of its roses.

A good diet to prevent constipation should include a goodly proportion of bulky food. For we wish undigested residue that will supply the necessary mechanical stimulus to the intestines. Bran is a good example of this.

Then there must be the valuable fruit acids and the vegetable salts, fresh fruit and vegetables every day. In addition to these, prunes and dates have a particularly valuable contribution to make.

Next in our beauty foods might come plenty of fresh water, at least four glasses a day. This not only helps prevent constipation, but also materially assists the blood in its task of distributing the different food elements to the various parts of the body.

Number three should be: Drink plenty of fresh milk.

Number four: Avoid stimulants.

Number five: Rest before and after eating; not a long idle spell, but a few moments at least of real relaxation, out of doors, if possible, and in company with pleasant companions.

Nothing has been said about balancing the diet, as it goes without saying that unless we are properly nourished, we cannot be at our best in point of looks. The above rules are only suggestive. Each individual can make up any number of other rules for himself, since he alone knows just how to modify and adapt the general rule of right feeding to keep his own particular body in good working order.

The point to emphasize is that learning the principles and applying them will lead to one indirect but very pleasant result, that of making the individual appear at his very best.

ANENT APPLE PIE

Is the apple pie to disappear from the breakfast, dinner and supper table of the average farmer? Perish the thought. One lone woman has ventured to arise in meeting and advise her sisters—the rural housewives of the commonwealth—to abstain henceforth from making apple pies, because, forsooth they can use the time and energy consumed in pie-making for nobler ends. This most venturesome of women declared she had actually tried it and had found the thing could be put over.

Now, it is probably a fact that the making and eating of apple pie has been a little bit overdone. Some housewives have toiled and slaved beyond all reason in the effort to provide enormous quantities of the delectable viand to glutinous men folks. Men should be trained to moderation. It will be better for their digestion, better for the atmosphere of the home, because it will enable wives to live longer and keep their dispositions in better order.

But let no one hint that apple pie is stricken from the New England bill of fare completely. Even reformers should be reasonable.

But our tip to husbands is not to neglect the compliments to ma's apple pies. These will fetch her—Boston Traveler, enough to hold him.

WATCH YOUR YOUNG MEN

It takes time to do anything. Therefore, time is an important factor in all accomplishments. But the idea that there is an age limit on ability is headed for the discard. Where they are given a free rein, young men—men under forty and even under thirty—are coming to the front in surprising number. A man who is noted for his ability to make successes of young men said recently:

"The secret of my ability to hold men and always to have a man to put in a responsible position is my policy of watching the young man closely. I keep an eye on all of them, and before they realize I know who they are, I am calling them into my office and asking them for their advice. If their advice sounds at all plausible, I give them carte blanche to go ahead and work out the plan they suggest. Often it almost staggers them. Too few of us realize the dormant ability we have around our business in the shape of young accountants, stenographers, clerks or young salesmen."—Forbes Magazine (N. Y.)

WIND'S PARTY.

"Well," said Mr. Wind, "do you want to come along and join my party?"

"Do we?" asked the Breeze Brothers. "Well, we should just say, yes."

And they whistled through their teeth and sounded very happy and cheerful.

"I'll tell you," said the Wind. "I'm going to have a ball game, and we'll go to the city to play. Are you all ready?"

"Indeed we are," said the Breeze Brothers. "Everyone come along," said Mr. Wind, "who belongs to my family. Come, little winds and big winds, come, everything that is a relation of the wind."

So everything that was a relation of the wind came along and as they were going towards the city Mr. Wind said: "We're going to the city because we can have more fun there and as I go along I will explain to you the rules of the game of ball we will play today."

"We felt just like a party today," said the Breeze Brothers.

"Good," said Mr. Wind. "That's the way I like to hear folks and creatures and things talk when they're going off to a party."

"Now I will tell you. I'm not bothering to bring any balls along with me. I don't know how to carry them very well and they would be a nuisance."

"I don't believe in going off on parties all laden down with things you have to carry."

"For those who like carrying baskets of food and games and all of that, well and good, but not for Mr. Wind."

"He isn't patient enough for that. He either wants to be sound asleep, or lazily blowing or having a real time."

"But, of course, it is mostly because I don't care for such things that I don't do them. I wouldn't like to carry baskets of food because they would be a nuisance and because I wouldn't even care about having the food."

"What would Mr. Wind do, for example, with a tomato sandwich? He might blow it about, but he wouldn't eat it. And what would he do with ginger ale? Blow over the bottle, but never drink it."

"So when he goes off on parties he doesn't bother about the food."

"That's sensible," said the Breeze Brothers. "We feel just the same way about it as you do. We, too, feel that it would be useless to tie ourselves all over carrying heavy baskets of food when we haven't real arms and hands to carry them and when we get them anywhere we wouldn't want to eat anything that was inside."

"And so," continued Mr. Wind, "instead of taking along balls to play with, the balls will be all there."

"We will find in the city that the men wear hats, nice straw hats which we'll blow this way and that, back and forth we'll blow a hat and throw it and catch it and have the most glorious of games. The hats will be our balls."

"And there will be enough hats for all of us. Of course, we won't take off everyone's hats, but we will take off a good many. Sometimes, too, we'll take off a lady's hat who hasn't bothered to put a hat pin in."

"And maybe we'll take a hat off of a little girl who hasn't her elastic band to keep it on."

"We'll see great omnibuses in this city with folks riding on the top and we'll take off some of their hats and blow them about and they'll have to get off, or someone from a bus following will pick up the hat and everyone will laugh and it will be great fun."

"G r a c i o u s," said Mr. Wind, "I can scarcely stop for breath now. Everyone will chase each other's hats and try to get their own and also try to keep them from blowing too far. But sometimes when they're going to pick up their hats one of us will be there at the hat and will send it flying off again."

"Oh, we'll have a fine time," said the Breeze Brothers, "and how sensible of you, dear Mr. Wind, to use the hats of people for balls to save us the trouble of taking our own games along. You're a good, thoughtful Mr. Wind."

"Perhaps the people won't say so today," said Mr. Wind with a wink. "Oh, what a party they had, but Mr. Wind and the Breeze Brothers enjoyed it far, far more than the people who said they had hardly ever known such a windy spring day!"

New saying: "It is better to be a tail light than not shine at all."

FRYEBURG

Daniel A. Noel of St. Johnsbury, Vt. is soon to open a new clothing store in town, in the building formerly occupied by the late Wallace K. Tarbox.

The well known Fryeburg artist Benjamin T. Newman had a very interesting collection of paintings on exhibition at the recent West Oxford fair. Mr. and Mrs. Newman spent last winter in Florida, where he made many sketches and did considerable painting.

Mrs. Mary B. Barker will spend the winter in Fryeburg at the Fryeburg studio on Main street.

The teachers of Fryeburg Academy recently climbed Mount Kearsarge. The excursion was made much more enjoyable and interesting because of the fine, warm weather, which has prevailed in this vicinity.

Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Jordan and family of Portland and their son, Raymond Jordan and family are spending a few weeks at the Jordan camps at Lovell's pond. They are also making improvements in the buildings at the pond.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Clement have been entertaining their brother and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Clement of Dover, Foxcroft.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur C. Pendexter and family have been spending a few days at their camp at North Chatham, N. H.

Dr. and Mrs. I. Chandler Walker and family, who have been spending the past months at their summer home, Bordwood, have now returned to their new home on Mason Road, Newton, Mass.

Mrs. Walker is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George H. Walker of Walker Hill Farm on the Bridgton road and Bordwood is situated near her former home which adds very much to the pleasure and happiness of both families.

Among the recent Fryeburg visitors have been Judge Hall and family of Boston and Mr. and Mrs. D. W. Hoegg, Jr., of Portland.

Mrs. E. W. Wild, the wife of the pastor of the Congregational Church recently visited Vermont where she attended the golden anniversary and the banquet of the Vermont Branch of the Woman's Board of Missions. EATING SALT

Sodium chloride or common salt is present in most of our every day foods and some of the food authorities maintain that we may obtain sufficient quantities from the foods.

Other experts are of the opinion that salt must be added to the foods.

At all events, the average consumption is about 20 grammes per capita, and according to the composition of the body this is theoretically about 10 times more than is necessary.

Recent experiments seem to prove that salt has little, if any, effect on digestion unless large quantities are consumed, and in that case the effect is detrimental.

There is a reason to believe that the use of a condiment salt has a beneficial effect in helping absorption of food.

Among the recent experiments are those that point to the conclusion that the use of salt tends to lessen nitrogenous waste, always provided that sufficient water is taken in conjunction with the diet.

Vegetarians seem to crave salt more than do flesh eaters, but so far, authorities cannot agree as to the reason for this.

If salt is entirely removed from the diet the secretion of one of the chief digestive fluids is lessened, and taking this into consideration it is advisable to limit the use of salt in cases of hyper-acidity of the stomach.

Several years' experience in supervision of children's diets has shown the necessity for constant vigilance in reducing the amounts of all condiments, particularly where there is a cardiac condition.

The good old-fashioned rule of cultivating a taste for mildly seasoned food is a good one and tends to produce the most satisfactory diet for the average person.

Last year the American Bell Telephone System carried 19,000,000,000 communications. The total distance covered by these 19,000,000,000 messages was over 45,000,000,000 miles. Assuming that equally satisfactory results could be obtained by the use of special messengers, it is interesting to estimate the physical magnitude of the task involved. Supposing that each messenger works nine hours per day and averages ten miles per hour, it would require 6,000,000 messengers; and at a conservative estimate would cost $10,000,000,000 to handle this business which the telephone handles at a cost of about $600,000,000 and with 300,000 employees.

Forty-six years ago there was one telephone in the world—the instrument which Bell invented. Today there is in the United States one telephone for every eight persons.

Forty-six years ago there were two telephone employees—Bell and his assistant. Today there are 300,000.

DADDY'S EVENING FAIRY TALE

OF MARY GRAHAM BONNER

WIND'S PARTY.

"Well," said Mr. Wind, "do you want to come along and join my party?"

"Do we?" asked the Breeze Brothers. "Well, we should just say, yes."

And they whistled through their teeth and sounded very happy and cheerful.

"I'll tell you," said the Wind. "I'm going to have a ball game, and we'll go to the city to play. Are you all ready?"

"Indeed we are," said the Breeze Brothers. "Everyone come along," said Mr. Wind, "who belongs to my family. Come, little winds and big winds, come, everything that is a relation of the wind."

So everything that was a relation of the wind came along and as they were going towards the city Mr. Wind said: "We're going to the city because we can have more fun there and as I go along I will explain to you the rules of the game of ball. We will play today."

"We felt just like a party today," said the Breeze Brothers.

"Good," said Mr. Wind. "That's the way I like to hear folks and creatures and things talk when they're going off to a party."

"Now I will tell you. I'm not bothering to bring any balls along with me. I don't know how to carry them very well and they would be a nuisance."

"I don't believe in going off on parties all laden down with things you have to carry."

"For those who like carrying baskets of food and games and all of that, well and good, but not for Mr. Wind."

"He isn't patient enough for that. He either wants to be sound asleep, or lazily blowing or having a real time."

"But, of course, it is mostly because I don't care for such things that I don't do them. I wouldn't like to carry baskets of food because they would be a nuisance and because I wouldn't even care about having the food."

"What would Mr. Wind do, for example, with a tomato sandwich? He might blow it about, but he wouldn't eat it. And what would he do with ginger ale? Blow over the bottle, but never drink it."

"So when he goes off on parties he doesn't bother about the food."

"That's sensible," said the Breeze Brothers. "We feel just the same way about it as you do. We, too, feel that it would be useless to tire ourselves all out carrying heavy baskets of food when we haven't real arms and hands to carry them and when we got them anywhere we wouldn't want to eat anything that was inside."

"And so," continued Mr. Wind, "instead of taking along balls to play with, the balls will be all there."

"We will find in the city that the men wear hats, nice straw hats which we'll blow this way and that, back and forth we'll blow a hat and throw it and catch it and have the most glorious of games. The hats will be our balls."

"And there will be enough hats for all of us. Of course, we won't take off everyone's hats, but we will take off a good many. Sometimes, too, we'll take off a lady's hat who hasn't bothered to put a hat pin in."

"And maybe we'll take a hat off of a little girl who hasn't her elastic band to keep it on."

"We'll see great omnibuses in this city with folks riding on the top and we'll take off some of their hats, and blow them about and they'll have to get off, or someone from a bus following will pick up the hat and everyone will laugh and it will be great fun."

"Gracious," said Mr. Wind, "I can scarcely stop for breath now. Everyone will chase each other's hats and try to get their own and also try to keep them from blowing too far. But sometimes when they're going to pick up their hats one of us will be there at the bat and will send it flying off again."

"Oh, we'll have a fine time," said the Breeze Brothers, "and how sensible of you, dear Mr. Wind, to use the hats of people for balls to save us the trouble of taking our own games along. You're a good, thoughtful Mr. Wind."

"Perhaps the people won't say so today," said Mr. Wind with a wink. "Oh, what a party they had, but Mr. Wind and the Breeze Brothers enjoyed it far, far more than the people who said they had hardly ever known such a windy spring day!"

New saying: "It is better to be a tall light than not shine at all."

A Hat "Off."

Gathering of Agricultural Clubs

One hundred and sixty boys and girls of Oxford County and their local leaders participated, Monday, in the annual county meeting of the agricultural and home economics clubs. It was a merry and enthusiastic assemblage. Two interesting sessions were held in Paris Grange Hall, where were also displayed numerous evidences of skill and training in garden work, canning, cooking and sewing. The pig and poultry clubs were represented in good numbers, but their members do not have to display their live stock at the contests. The records and stories are accepted in the scoring.

County Agent R. H. Lovejoy and Miss

Anita Nicholson, the county home demonstration agent, had general charge of arrangements. They were assisted by State

Leader Lester H. Shibles and his assistant, Mrs. Anna Sutton Mixer of the College of Agriculture, extension service. The canning exhibit was judged by A. Van

Denkerhove of Bethel, the Farm Bureau county club project leader.

Every club member who had carried his project through to a finish received a prize in the form of cash or its equivalent in bank deposit. The prizes, amounting to $250, were contributed by the So.

Paris Savings Bank, the Paris Trust Co.

and the Norway National Bank, the last named institutions giving $50 each and the two South Paris banks $100 each.

Of the four county championships in the senior division two, in canning, cooking and housekeeping, were won by Glenna Starbird of South Paris. The county champion in canning is Lora M. Porter of Bethel, and in the sweet corn project

Henry A. Plummer of South Paris. These

county championships go to those whose scores are the highest in their respective, production, accuracy of records and excellence of essays describing the season's work, count in the scoring.

George M. Atwood, treasurer of the South Paris Savings Bank, welcomed the visitors, at the opening of the forenoon session, after everybody had inspected and admired the display of club products

The report of the inspection by the State Board of Charities and Corrections of the Hartford town farm has been made public and recommends that the cess pool be moved farther away from the house and that a fire extinguisher be purchased.

The report of the inspection says in part: Superintendent and Matron, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Strout. They received an annual salary of $400. They have been at this institution over a year. When they came, they were inexperienced. The inspector was informed that the overseers of the poor are not in the habit of making thorough inspections.

There is only one inmate. He is a feeble minded man 73 years of age. The largest number of inmates present at any one time during the past years has been two. Two inmates can be comfortably cared for as at present equipped.

The atmosphere of the place is homelike. Reading material is provided for the inmate. The superintendent and matrons have taken him to church several times, but as it appears to make him very unhappy, they will not continue to do so. He has a few visitors. He cleans out the barn, saws wood and rakes hay.

Bathing is required once a week. Separate dishes and towels are provided for him. Tramps are fed and lodged. They are required to work to pay for accommodation.

The location of the farm is good. The frame house is one and one-half stories high and contains seven rooms. The general state of repair is good. The stairs are easy for old people.

Practically all of the furniture is owned by superintendent. There is sufficient furniture and it is of good quality.

The food is well cooked and is kept in a clean pantry. There are no refrigerators. Some of the food is kept in an ice tank in the cream house. Inmate has the same kind of food as is eaten by superintendent and matron. He eats at a table in the kitchen. This table is covered with oil cloth.

The house is clean. The beds are clean and appear to be comfortable. Inmate has cotton blankets on his bed.

The source of water supply is a good well. The sink drain runs into the well a short distance from the house. A bad odor from cess pool sometimes reaches the house. There are earth closets which are in good condition. The house is heated by stoves and is lighted by kerosene lamps. The inmate's room is kept warm in cold weather. There is no fire protection.

Since Mr. and Mrs. Strout have been at the institution a new chimney has been made, new cupboards have been made in the kitchen and a hardwood floor has been laid.

Year 'Round Comfort at a Modest Cost The 1923 Buick Four Sedan—$1395

The new Buick four cylinder, five-passenger sedan has every convenience and comfort of the finest closed car—and at a price that fits the purse of the average family.

The Fisher-built body is trimmed and upholstered in fine plush with hardware of a handsome pattern. Wide doors with large plate glass windows, adjustable to any position, give easy access to the roomy compartments. Silk shades, a soft dome-light and fine carpeting are all of a quality found only in higher priced closed cars.

The lower body and higher radiator and hood, give this sedan a distinguished appearance that is heightened by the crown fenders, drum type head and parking lamps.

Marked refinements in the chassis and in the famous Buick Valve-in-Head engine increase the riding comfort and add materially to the inherent Buick qualities of dependability and performance.

Convenient Gear Shift Lever
In all of the 1923 Buick models the gear shift lever has been redesigned, bringing it to the level where the driver's hand will rest naturally when released from the steering wheel. Changing gears can be done quickly, without bending forward or groping for the lever.

The Buick Line for 1923 comprises fourteen models:
Four—2 Pass. Roadster, $865; 5 Pass. Touring, $885; 3 Pass. Coupe, $1175; 5 Pass. Sedan, $1395; 5 Pass. Touring Sedan, $1425. Six—2 Pass. Roadster, $1175; 5 Pass. Touring, $1195; 5 Pass. DR. W. E. SARGENT DEAD

William E. Sargent, A. M. Litt. D., died Saturday, Oct. 7, after suffering a shock, living but a few minutes after being stricken. Dr. Sargent suffered the first shock in January, 1921, but his condition had greatly improved of late.

Dr. Sargent was born at Sanford in May, 1856 and graduated from Bowdoin College in 1874. He was principal of Topsham and Freeport high schools for several years and received the degree of Master of Arts from Bowdoin and doctor of literature from Colby College. He was principal of Hebron Academy from 1888 to 1921.

Last winter he stayed for several months at the home of Mrs. Sargent's sister in Brooklyn, N. Y., returning to Hebron in June of this year. His death occurred at 4 o'clock shortly after the return to the home on the academy grounds, the John D. Long cottage of Mrs. Sargent who had left the house to mail some letters.

Through his activities, Hebron Academy, while famous for generations but limited in numbers and equipment, grew from an institution of about 100 students and a small faculty to a student body numbering more than 250 and a faculty of 12 or more teachers.

Funeral services were held Wednesday in the Baptist Church near the academy grounds, at 10:45 o'clock. Rev. A. E. Kinsley, pastor of the church, officiated.

Mr. Maxey of Gardiner spoke for the trustees of the school, President J. Roberts of Colby College, as representing the educational institutions of Maine, and a member of the Hebron Academy faculty spoke for that institution.

Many women will profit by the following statement of one of their sex: "I was afraid to eat on account of stomach trouble. Even rice did not agree. After taking Adler-ika I can eat anything." Adler-ika acts on BOTH upper and lower bowel, removing foul matter which poisoned the stomach. EXCELLENT for gas on the stomach or sour stomach. Guards against appendicitis. It brings out poisonous matter you never thought was in your system. Frank Kimball, Druggist.

Dyer and Walter P. Perkins for the plaintiff. The jury were unable to agree and no verdict returned.

Garland vs. Walker

The case Wednesday was Frank M. Garland of Brownfield vs. Mrs. Helen M. Walker, administratrix of the John C. Greeley estate. Action was to recover $650 for services on the farm from 1909 to 1913 inclusive, with the same parties involved as in the previous case.

According to the plaintiff he returned to the homestead after an absence, bringing his wife and they entered upon the duties common on the average farm. Garland stated he went ahead with the management, cleared and improved certain parcels with the consent of his former father, John C. Greeley and made himself generally useful as a farm hand. According to the story Mr. and Mrs. Garland lived with the Greeley's with everything in common for a time. Later the plan was modified and each family provided their own groceries but prepared and served the common meals. Witnesses testified to the amount of work performed and gradual improvements made about the place during the plaintiffs engagement there. An alleged conversation between Mr. Greeley and witnesses was to the effect a carriage house and a parcel of land was to be given Mr. Garland for a home. Evidence showed this alleged suggestion has never become a fact. Howard Miller and Bert M. St. Claire employed on the farm at times during the years mentioned, stated they were engaged and paid by Mr. Garland while they considered the manager.

The defense was a denial of the plaintiffs claim for wages owing to the fact he and his wife were subsisting mainly on the products from the farm. They were literally given a home and the management was cooperative with the families sharing about equally. Furthermore the defense contended the son only returned to share home duties with his foster parents and sister Mrs. Walker, who then was Helen Greeley. Several witnesses told of Garland working elsewhere with his horse for wages, and of his income from cows and hens he owned, going as alleged to his personal account.

Some spice was sandwiched into the case when Hugh Hastings for the plaintiff and Fred R. Dyer for the defendant, argued pointedly for or against the admission of evidence. The assessors books of Brownfield for the years 1909-10-11-12 were ruled out after a sharp argument, as were the plaintiff and defendant's short testimony following a brief session on the stand.

After the conclusion of the testimony and before the plea, Justice Wilson consulted with the assessors in the case and ordered a verdict in favor of the defendant. Exceptions were filed by Hastings & Son for the plaintiff and the case will go to the law court. Fred R. Dyer and Walter P. Perkins for the defendant.
